

Economic Revival of Russia
Submission, Review and Publication Guidelines

1. The Economic Revival of Russia Editorial Board welcomes contributions on current issues of fundamental and applied economic theory, business practices and research activities of the economic community.

2. Scholarly articles should incorporate the following elements: general problem statement; substantiation of its relevance in the context of major scientific and practical issues; analysis of the latest research and publications (including foreign sources) that seek to resolve the issue raised in the submission and provide the background for the author's work; identification of previously unresolved aspects of the general issue discussed in the submission; statement of objectives (problem definition); body of the submission featuring comprehensive analysis of obtained results; conclusions and prospects for further research in the field.

3. Authors should cite sources for statistical data and provide a list of references. Self-citation is deemed unethical.

4. Apart from the text of the article, authors should provide its a UDC classifier, title, abstract and keywords in Russian and in English.

5. The journal does not charge submission, review, copyediting or publication fees.

6. The author warrants that he holds exclusive copyright on the submission (article) and that submitted material is original. Moreover, the author warrants that while the submission is being considered for publication it will not be submitted to other scholarly journals or transferred to any third persons.

7. Submissions should be sent to the publisher's email account: evr@inir.ru.

8. Each author should provide his last name, first name, patronymic (if applicable), affiliations, position, academic degree and rank, and email and phone number for communications with the Editorial Office. Author details should be provided in Russian and in English.

9. Submission length: 25,000–45,000 characters (with spaces); illustrations should not exceed 50% of submission length (each illustration should not exceed 1 page).

10. All submissions should comply with the following formatting standards: 14-point Times New Roman font throughout the text; 1.5 spacing; 2 cm margins on all sides; all abbreviations should be defined at first mention; figures (their quantity reasonable) should be submitted as separate files, preferably in TIF format; tables should be drawn on separate pages, use 12-point font for numerical data and feature topical headings.

11. References should be provided at the end of the text and comply with the GOST P.7.0.5-2008 standard. References should be numbered to reflect the order of their mention in the submission. When citing journal articles or essays in a collection, provide the page range for the entire article or essay. For in-text citations, provide the reference's respective number in square brackets (e.g. [2], [2,

3]. When providing page numbers, use the following format: [2, p. 312]; [3, p. 312–320]. When citing electronic sources accessed remotely (online sources), provide access date in round brackets (access date: 01.03.2020) following the hyperlink. All references mentioned in the reference list should be cited in the text, and vice versa. It is the author's responsibility to provide a properly transliterated list of references.

12. The Editorial Office reserves the right to make necessary editorial changes and/or shorten the text of the submission.

13. All scholarly articles submitted to the Economic Revival of Russia undergo mandatory peer review.

14. In each individual case, peer review times are determined so as to create the conditions for prompt publication of the submission.

15. Peer review is confidential. The author of a reviewed submission has the opportunity to read the text of the review. Breach of anonymity is possible only when a reviewer claims inaccuracy or falsification of research data.

16. Peer Review Process. Within the term of one month, a reviewer reads submitted materials, analyzes them and sends his review to the Editorial Office. The review should contain: general impression of the submission; assessment of its compliance with requirements for scholarly publications, including novelty and originality of research, as well as substantiation and significance of conclusions and suggestions presented in the article; substantiated recommendation to accept the submission, reject it (listing specific reasons for such rejection) or send the submission to the author for revision with the possibility of further reconsideration. Reviews are submitted in writing and certified with reviewer signature and seal.

17. If a reviewer recommends to amend and revise a submission, a member of the Editorial Office sends the text of the review to the author with the suggestion to incorporate suggested changes into a new version of the submission or substantiate why the author chooses to refute them in whole or in part. Amended (revised) submissions undergo repeat reviewing.

18. If a reviewer recommends to reject a submission, the journal will not reconsider it. In case of a negative review, its text is sent to the author via email, fax or regular mail.

19. Original reviews are kept at the Economic Revival of Russia Editorial Office for three years.

20. Once the Editorial Office makes the decision to publish a submission, an Office representative notifies the author thereof and provides publication dates.